THE CALENDAR.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1908.

Nothing unless it, or low, or high, is in its place in the world.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY.

Capture of Kuma, 1741. Charles killed and destroyed at Wei-Hai-Wei, 1895.

TIMELY TOPICS.

It was 22 miles ago this morning.

The beautiful milk water. It will drive business at the same old stand.

And the bottom of the cable is planning to plug up in some place.

The cold waves are coming a little too frequently these days.

But it's fine bracing weather. Water remains up to the neck of the unemployed, "barren" a citizen for quarter, and not in. Then, you suppose, in next out and blow it in for the stuff with the fresh air. It's that's just when you have another time coming. The municipality of city would not and invested in a quarter in a step-hold some shrewd, then to gallop to the front and attack a job on the water-works and at present is engaged in accumulating a bank account. That that has energy and initiative left will be a captain of industry for some time.

So they need extra hands to harvest the crop. It must be hurriedly moved out to this time.

Cheer up. That's how delightful it must be to those who have been shown up to us for the last few years.

Who are wintering in Florida and other places down where the shavers are humming at present.

The hand that cracks the cradle, at present, is not nearly so important as the hand that carries in the coal and grinds the more shrewd.

It is said that there is urgent need of an amendment to fill the office of Waterworks manager, a position rendered vacant by the death of the late Mr. J. C. Croft Helms. This was, up before.

Compulsions are made that certain sidewalks on Bridge st. east, are not cleared of snow as they should.

Exp. If it is to keep track, the ladies can hardly condemn the young men if the latter seem to have lost interest.

This will be a short month, but old men pretending to be in old man's line can't be so sure.

Our Great

February Sales

February Wallpaper Sale...

Exceeding all of 46,000 rolls of paper not destroyed, not even injured in our recent fire. We mean to clear out every roll before placing our new stock of 100,000 rolls purchased for spring fixtures.

This sale is one of the greatest of opportunities for home makers' papers, worth 7c and 10c per roll for 25c.

Our decorative and painting department is at your command with all up to date workmen, at reasonable prices, in the sale.

February Picture-Sale Framing

In opening our new art gallery on second floor, 60 feet long, we are during the month of February making a strictly discount from the prices of all picture framing and 50 pictures of 25 cent, one-quarter.

All new materials and fully installed machinery for the execution of superior workmanship at modest cost, you can't buy any better.

Our picture framing department would be a credit to any city in Canada—it is a credit to Belleville.

Russia Moves Large Army to Persian Frontier.

Alarmed at Turkish Prestige of Russian-Funds Voted by Duma—$100,000 For Floating Bismarck—War Regarded as Imminent in the Spring—Turkey Making Preparations for "Sharp Conflict."

St. Petersburg, Feb. 10.—The Russian Duma has today voted a sum of $100,000 for floating Bismarck bonds, a move which is regarded as a step towards the resumption of hostilities with Turkey. The Duma also voted a sum of $100,000 for floating Bismarck bonds, a move which is regarded as a step towards the resumption of hostilities with Turkey. The Duma also voted a sum of $100,000 for floating Bismarck bonds, a move which is regarded as a step towards the resumption of hostilities with Turkey.

M. Guchkov, leader of the Octobrist party, in a speech, said that the nation was now in a position to take any step which might lead to a settlement of the Turkish question. He also said that the Duma was now in a position to take any step which might lead to a settlement of the Turkish question. Original Papers on Timber License Deal to Be Produced.

Resolution Passed Parliament After Premier Received Timber License. New Member For House Takes His Seat—Debate on $2,000 Subsidy Revokes Mine Plain Talk on Railways.

Ottawa, Feb. 11.—A motion for production of the original papers in respect of the timber license deal was passed by the House last night without a dissenting voice. The Premier, Mr. Borden, expressed his surprise that the papers should be requested. He said the papers were in the possession of the original papers in respect of the timber license deal.

Mr. Borden said that he could not do justice to the question without the papers and that he would not give the information for the Premier. He said that the papers were in the possession of the original papers in respect of the timber license deal.

Mr. R. R. Gamey Brings to Light Some Opposition Errors

Man From Mantoulin Retaliates For Mr. Smith's Short-Lived Tramp—Several Kinds of Honesty—Accusations of Public Larceny—Upbuilding of Greater Ontario—Liberal "Old Clothes" Not Wanted.

Toronto, Feb. 12.—In a telling attack on the Legislature yesterday Mr. R. R. Gamey effectively met and disposed of the plans of Mr. C. W. Smith (Sault Ste. Marie) that the Government was "stealing the clothes of Liberalism." He set forth the "clothes" worn by the "Liberalism," which included in his opinion the fact general election was directed to the people, while the spread of the starchy, honest Liberalism of Provincial Days had been cut short. Incidentally Hon. Nelson Monaghan, Minister of Agriculture, made a brief statement to the effect that there was no foundation for the allegation that the department had paid $12,000 for a horse blind in both eyes, and another "chump" left to the ground with a skull and crossbones.

In resuming the debate Mr. Smith (Sault Ste. Marie) fervently tendered an apology to the Minister of Agriculture for having held him wrongly responsible for the purchase of a blind mare for $12,000. The speaker has since learned that another member of the administration had presented an affidavit in the purchase of the mare. He said, Mr. Whitney—"Sort of a Mr. Smith—Possibly, if you stir it up."

MANY BIG ISSUES.
Ambassador Bryce Will Discuss Large Program With Canada.

Washington, Feb. 14.—Ambassador Bryce leaves Ottawa tomorrow to meet up with the Canadian administration the details of negotiations at Ottawa and the United States and Canada. It is hoped to conclude and to transfer in a treaty which will end pending matters between the United States and Canada.

Negotiations providing for the submission of the Newfoundland question to the Hague are already under way. The visit of Bryce to Ottawa some months ago paved the way for negotiations in which he was engaged, and it is expected that Mr. Bryce will conclude the parallelly little difficulty in reaching an understanding with the officials of Ottawa on points which remain to be settled.

The various questions which are to be dealt with by the ambassador are summarized as follows:

First.—Transfer from the United States of certain portions of American and Canadian territory.

Second.—Transfer of merchandise without payment of duty until arrival at points in interior.

Third.—Establishment of alien laws in citizens of the United States and Canada.

Fourth.—Repealed mine owning rights.

Fifth.—Convergence of American and Canadian laws in relation to the same, and vice versa.

Sixth.—Control of salvage and wrecking rights.

Seventh.—Control of logging boats in St. John River.

Eighth.—Establishment of certain pecuniary claims.

Ninth.—Establishment of Canadian consular temporarily to United States.

Tenth.—Disruption of power from the St. Lawrence.

It would appear that the ambassador of St. Lawrence to every question between the United States and Canada, and the disposal of the best of the question.

It is possible that arbitration of the St. Lawrence question will not be concluded, ratification of a treaty between the United States and Canada will be required as virtually dispositive of the question and long standing contention.

TIMELY TOPICS.

SOME VAMPIRES.
Long year, course, but sure to last.

Don't lose this chance—no way
Get no more.

To the men (unmarried)
If the year ends on Sat., don't Go on with your heart, don't Get married.

To the married Ladies—
First kindly thank the men,
Then say to your husband, the venerable sir—
Though not made of money,
Still let him know—

To the married men—
First kindly thank the ladies,
Then say to your wife, the lovely girl—
To the ladies—
All know that in charging you a good deal of skill—
But what you lack, the Judge
add to Amanda's list.

To the detesters—
We know that of persons you heavy load—
But if one of your number go on the first road.

To the cool men—
We regard you a lot, and don't mean to be funny, but let us mention one or two little for our money.

To the writers—
We're a good lot of them, and always on deck.
But what you lack, the Judge
add to Amanda's list.

To the temperance people—
Mr. John Harrison, at a prison a winner.
But still old year—then again
the old cheer.

To the hotel-keepers—
They have the law, keep your selfright high but don't say again, the law
may go dry.

To the owners—
You can find all of them

IN THE FOG

Right out in the yellow fog. I shouted 'All right!' and the voice of my friend answered, 'Good luck to you.' The light from his open door disappeared with a bang, and I was left alone in a dripping, yellow darkness. I was as been in the Navy for ten years, but I have never known such a fog as that of last night, not even among the icebergs of Behring Sea. There one at least could see the light of the biscuits, but last night I could not even distinguish the hand by which I myself along the barracks wall. As a fog is a natural phenomenon, it is as familiar as the rainbow which follows a storm, it is as proper that a fog should spread upon the waters as that steam shall rise from a kettle. But a fog which springs from the paved streets, that rolls between solid house-fronts, that forces sale to man's eyes, that blinds the policeman and extinguishes the electric lights of the music hall, that to me is incomprehensible. It is as out of place as a tidal wave on Broadway.

"As I felt my way along the wall, I encountered other men who were coming from the opposite direction, and each time when we met, each other I stopped away from the wall to make room for them to pass. But the third time I did this, when I reached out with my hand, the wall had disappeared, and the further I moved to find it the further I seemed to be sinking into space. I had the unpleasant conviction that at any moment I might step over a precipice. Since I had set out I had heard no traffic in the street, and now, although I entered some minutes, I could only distinguish the occasional footfalls of pedestrians. Several times I called aloud, and once a peculiar gruff man answered me, but only to ask me where I thought he was, and then even he was swallowed up in the silence. Just alone in the fog, I could make out a jet of gas which I guessed came from a street lamp, and I moved over to that, and, while I tried to recover my bearings, kept my hand on the iron post. Except for this flicker of gas, no larger than the tip of my finger, I could distinguish nothing more. For the rest, the mist hung between me and the world like a damp and heavy blanket.

"I could hear voices, but I could not tell from whence they came, and the tempo of a foot moving capriciously, or a rattled cry as some one stumbled, were the only sounds I could hear. I decided that until some one took me to town I had best remain where I was, and it must have been for ten minutes that I waited by the lamp, straining my ears and hearing distant footfalls. In a house near me some people were dancing to the music of a Hungarian band. I decided I would wait the window shade to the rhythm of their feet, but I could not make out from which part of the compass the sounds came. And sometimes, as the music rose, it seemed close at my hand, and again, to be floating high in the air above my head. Although I was surrounded by thousands of households, I was as completely lost as though I had been set down by night in the Sahara Desert. There seemed to be no reason in waiting longer for an escort, so I again set out, and at once bumped against a low iron fence. At first I believed this to be an area railing, but on following it I found that it stretched for a long distance, and that it was pierced at regular intervals with gates. I was standing suddenly with my hand on one of these when a square of light suddenly opened in the night, and in it I saw, as you see a picture thrown by a biograph in a darkened theater, a young gentleman in evening dress, and back of him the lights of a hall. I guessed from his elevation and distance from the sidewalk that this light must come from the door of a house set back from the street, and I determined to approach it and ask the young man to tell me where I was. But in fumbling with the knob of the gate I instinctively bent my head, and when I raised it again the door had partly closed, revealing only a narrow shaft of light. After the young man had closed the door, I could not tell where I was, and I was left to wait the open gate, and at I stepped forward I found myself upon an asphalt walk. At the same instant there was the sound of quick steps upon the path, and some one rushed past me. I called to him, but he made no reply, and I heard the gate click and the footfalls hurrying away upon the sidewalk.

"Under other circumstances the young man's rudeness, and his recklessness in dashing so hurriedly through the mist, would have struck me as peculiar, but everything was so distorted by the fog that at the moment I did not consider it. The door was still in the half light, it partly open. I went up the path, and after doubtful fumbling, found the knob of the door-bell and gave it a sharp pull. The bell answered me from a great depth and distance, but no movement followed from inside the house, and although I pulled the bell again and again I could hear nothing save the drip of the mist about me. I was anxious to be on my way, but unless I knew where I was going there was little chance of my making any speed, and it was determined that I would learn my bearings. I would not venture back into the fog,

"I found myself in a long and narrow hall, upon which doors opened from either side. At the end of the hall was a staircase with a balustrade which ended in a sweeping curve. The balustrade was covered with heavy Persian rugs, and the walls of the hall were also hung with them. The door on my right was open, and I saw that it was the right way open, and as I stepped onward I saw that it was a sort of reception or waiting-room, and that it was empty. The door below it was also open, and with the idea that I would surely find some one there, I walked on up the hall. I was in evening dress, and I felt that I did not look like a burglar, so I had no great fear, but I was not a counter one of the inmates of the house, he would shoot me on sight. The second door on the hall opened into a dining-room. This was also empty. One person had been dining at the table, but the cloth had not been cleared away, and a flickering candle showed half-filled wine-glasses and the ashes of cigarettes. The greater part of the room was in complete darkness.

"By this time I had grown conscious of the fact that I was wandering about in a strange house, and that, apparently, I was alone in it. The silence of the place began to try my nerves, and in a sudden, unexplainable panic I started for the open street. But as I moved, I was a man sitting on a bench, which the curve of the balustrade had hidden from me. His eyes were shut, and he was sleeping soundly.

"The moment before I had been bewildered because I could see no one, but at sight of this man I was much more bewildered. He was a very large man, a giant's height, with long yellow hair which hung below his shoulders. He was wearing a red silk shirt that was belted at the waist and hung outside black velvet trousers which, in turn, were stuffed into high black boots. I recognized the costume at once as that of a Russian servant, but what a Russian servant in the street at night was doing in a private house in Knightsbridge was incomprehensible.

"I advanced and touched the man on the shoulder, and after a few rapid and making deprecatory gestures. I had picked up enough Russian in Petersburg to make out that the man was apologizing for having fallen asleep, and I also was able to explain to him that I desired to see his master.

"He nodded vigorously, and said, 'Will the Excellency come this way?' The Princess is here."

"I distinctly made out the word 'Princess,' and I was a good deal embarrassed. I had thought it would be easy enough to explain my intrusion to a man, but how a woman would look at it was another matter, and as I followed him down the hall I was somewhat puzzled.

"As we advanced, he noticed that the front door was standing open, and with an exclamation of surprise, he turned toward it and closed it. Then he rapped twice on the door of what was apparently the drawing-room. There was no reply to his knock, and he tapped again, and then timidly, and cringing submissively, opened the door and stepped inside. He withdrew himself at once and stared stupidly at me, shaking his head.

"She is not there," he said. He stood for a moment gazing blankly through the open door, and then hastened toward the dining-room. The solitary candle which still burned there seemed to assure him that nothing was amiss except. He came back and bowed me toward the drawing-room. "She is there," he said; "I will inform the Princess of the Excellency's presence."

"Before I could stop him he had turned and was running up the staircase, leaving me alone at the open door of the drawing-room. I decided that the adventure had gone quite far enough, and I had, I began to explain to the Russian that I had lost my way in the fog, and only wanted to get back into the street again. I would have left the house on the instant.

"Of course, when I first met the bell of the house I had no other expectation than that it would be answered by a park-maid, and I would direct me on my way. I certainly could not then have thought that I would disturb a Russian princess in her boudoir, or that I might be thrown out by her athletic bodyguard. Still, I thought I ought not now to leave the house without making some apology, and, if I went, I should, I thought, I could show my card. They could not refuse that a member of an Embassy had my designs upon the hat-rack."

"The room in which I stood was dimly lighted, but I could see that, like the hall, it was hung with heavy Persian rugs. The corners were filled with palms, and there was the unmistakable odor in the air of roses and cigar-ashes. The room was a perfect picture of the lazaret of Valdivia. Near the front windows was a grand piano, and at the other end of the room a heavily carved screen of some black wood, picked out with ivory. The screen was overhung with a canopy of rich draperies, and formed a sort of alcove. In front of the alcove was a white table with a gold stand, and on that was one of those low Turkish coffee tables. It held a lighted spirit lamp and two gold coffee cups. I had heard no movement from above stairs, and it must have been fully three minutes that I stood waiting, noting these details of the room and wondering at the delay, and at the strange silence.

"And then, suddenly, as my eye grew more used to the half-light, I saw, projecting from behind the screen as though it were stretched along the back of a divan, the hand of a man and the lower part of his arm. I was as startled as though I had come across a footprint on a deserted island. Evidently the man was in a position to come into the room, even since I had entered the house, and he had heard the servant knocking upon the door. Why he had not declared himself I could not understand, but I supposed that possibly he was a guest, with no reason to interfere him in the Princess's other visitors, or, perhaps, for some reason, he did not wish to be observed. I could see nothing of him except his hand, but I had an unpleasant feeling that he was being at me through the carving on the screen, and that he still was going. I moved my feet noiselessly on the floor and sat waiting, and began to grow impatient.

"There was no reply, and the hand did not stir. Apparently the man was bent upon ignoring me, but as all I wished was to apologize for my intrusion and to leave the house, I walked up to the alcove and peered around it. Inside the screen was a divan piled with cushions, and on the end of it sat a man in a suit as plain as mine. He was a young Englishman with light yellow hair and a deeply tanned face. He was seated with his knees stretched out along the back of the divan, and with his head resting against a cushion. His attitude was one of complete ease. But his mouth had fallen open, and his eyes were set with an expression of utter horror. At the first glance I saw that he was quite dead.

"For a flash of time I was too startled to act, but in the same flash I was convinced that the man had met his death from no accident, that he had not died of any ordinary failure of the laws of nature. The expression on his face was too terrible to be misinterpreted. It spoke as eloquently as words. It told me that before the end had come he had watched his death approach and threaten him.

"I was so sure he had been murdered that I instinctively looked on the floor for the weapon, and at the same moment, out of concern for my own safety, quickly behind me; but the silence of the house continued unbroken.

"I have seen a great number of dead men; I was in Port Arthur after the massacre of the Chinese, for the single reason that he is dead, does not repel me, and, though I knew that there was no hope that this man was alive, still for decency's sake, I felt his pulse, and while I kept my ears alert for any sound from the floors above me, I pulled upon his wrist and placed my hand upon his heart. My fingers instinctively touched upon the opening of a wound, and as I withdrew them I found them wet with blood. It was in evening dress, and in the wide bosom of his shirt I found a narrow slit, so narrow that in the dim light it was scarcely discernible. The wound was no wider than the smallest blade of a pocket-knife, but when I tripped the shirt away from the chest and left it bare I found that the weapon, narrow as it was, had been long enough to reach his heart. There was no need to tell you how I felt as I stood by the body of this boy, for he was hardly older than a boy, or of the thoughts that came into my head. I was bitterly sorry for this stranger; bitterly indignant at his murderer; and, at the same time, so fully concerned for my own safety and for the notoriety which I saw was sure to follow. My instinct was to leave the body where it lay, and to hide myself in the fog, but I also felt that since a succession of accidents had made me the only witness to a crime, my duty was to make myself a good witness and to assist to establish the facts of this murder.

"That it might possibly be a suicide, and not a murder, did not disturb me for a moment. The fact that the weapon had disappeared, and the expression on the boy's face were enough to convince me, at least, that he had no hand in his own death. I judged it, therefore, of the first importance to discover who was in the house, and I had escaped from it, who had been in the house before I entered it. I had seen one man leave it; but all I could tell of him was that he was a young man, that he was in evening dress, and that he had led in such haste that he had not stopped to close the door behind him. The Russian servant, who had found me apparently asleep, and, unless he acted a part with supreme skill, he was a stupid and ignorant boy, and as innocent of the murder as myself. There was still the Russian princess, whom he had expected to find, or had pretended to expect to find, in the same room with the murdered man. I judged that I must not to either explain my late arrival, or that she had, without his knowledge, already fled from the house. When I recalled his apparently genuine surprise at not finding her in the drawing-room, this latter supposition seemed the more probable. Nevertheless, I decided that I would try to find her, and after a second hurried look for the weapon among the cushions of the divan, and upon the floor, I cautiously crossed the hall and entered the dining-room.

"The single candle was still flickering in the draught and shivered on the rest of the room. The door was closed in shadow. I picked up the candle, and, lifting it high above my head, moved around the corner of the table. Either my nerves were on such a stretch that no shock could strain them further, or my mind was inoculated to horror, for I did not cry out at what I saw nor retreat from it. Instead, I stood for a moment staring at the beautiful woman, lying at full length upon the floor, her arms flung out on either side of her, and her white face and shoulders gleaming dully in the unstable light of the candle. Around her throat was a great chain of diamonds, and the light played upon these and made them flash and blaze in my flames. I was so struck by the sight, and I was so conscious of the fact that how she had died that without an instant's hesitation I dropped on my knees beside her and placed my hand above her heart. My fingers again touched the thin slit of a wound. I had no doubt in my mind but that this was the Russian princess, and when I lowered the candle to my feet I saw as surely as I could see that it was she. The finest lines of both the Slav and the Jewess; the eyes were black, the hair blue-black and wonderfully heavy, and her skin, even in death, was rich in color. She was a surpassingly beautiful woman.

"I rose and tried to light another candle with the one I held, but I found that my hand was so numbly that I could not keep the match together. It was my intention to again search for this stranger, but which had been used to kill both the English boy and the beautiful

BLACKED.

Note on a Descriptive Black and its Prevention.

A dirty stockman who lives in a district where breeding cows knows that it is the young animals, especially those between one and three years of age, which are most liable to become affected.

To prepare the vaccine in such a way that it may be injected hypodermically it is necessary to obtain certain implements, which, together with the hypodermic syringe, are known as a vaccinating outfit. This consists of a hypodermic syringe, a small glass funnel and a measuring glass. The vaccine is prepared by mixing the vaccine with the vaccine, and the vaccine is prepared by mixing the vaccine with the vaccine.

All of the sterilized, including the hypodermic syringe and a package of sterilized cotton, are fitted into a polished oak case, which by means of an adjustable screw can be opened as a support for the funnel when the vaccine is being injected. The vaccine is prepared by mixing the vaccine with the vaccine, and the vaccine is prepared by mixing the vaccine with the vaccine.

THE STOCKMAN.

Full blacking has developed a poorer quality of cow even than was reported a month ago. The estimate of range men is that the disease has increased in November, the crop aggregate is estimated to be about 100,000 head, and the disease is estimated to be about 100,000 head, and the disease is estimated to be about 100,000 head.

Character of Slag. The feeding value of slag is in a large measure determined by the richness in nutrients especially available for the nourishment of cattle. It is of great value as compared with dry matter, and it is of great value as compared with dry matter, and it is of great value as compared with dry matter.

Gasoline Scarcity
We are especially well stocked with HUI COAL for the coming week. The scarcity of gasoline is a serious matter, being all gasoline out, clean, bright, and free from impurities.

After the Shovelers.

Respectable Thieves Will Be Allowed to Keep Their Future.
New York, Feb. 17.—A number of large retail druggists have banded together to prevent promotional social concessions from saving a woman detected in "shoplifting from public prosecution."
"Store detectives generally stop promotional shoplifters as soon as they enter the store," said a goods man familiarly. "But you can't do anything with the socially-minded shoplifter unless you catch her with the goods. And then, as a usually the case, she has prominent relatives, or her father and mother are well-known socialites, she sends for them, and the case is never heard of."
A number of large druggists, merchants met the other day and decided to "ban" the socially-minded shoplifter in all cases. All of these men are prominent in the community, and are not arrested or detected shoplifters but rather they are detected by the woman's relatives and friends. The first Attorney General has been spoken of, and he has expressed his opinion that the case is a serious one.

Supragettes Give British Cabinet Ministers a Live Time.

Acquainted Gang by Detective—Fugitive to Be Silly Rather Than Criminal.
London, Feb. 17.—Whatever the result to their cause, the supragettes have captured the attention of the entire country. No day passes without a demonstration of some sort, usually having its sequel in the police courts. Sixty-three supragettes have gone to jail this week for 40 days.

ARTILLERY CURIOSITIES.

Old Time Cannon That Were Made of a Catfish, Wood and Bone.

Among the curiosities of artillery and armaments have a great price. Cannon have been made of the most material. Leather was used as early as Henry VIII's day at the city of Bologna. The very articles were stored in the tower doors.

Drugs are then there, inscribed "On this spot once stood an ancient mortar." Are they still lying in some corner of a forgotten castle? The Scotch exported leather from London to battle and cavalry fortifications at Newburn, and the French at the battle of Marston.

"One citizen has wrought out the scheme of a wooden cannon, and France has actually pointed it in the first instance. It is to be made staves by the coopers, of almost boundless timber, but containing no powder strength."

The wall pieces brought to France by the Spanish ambassador as presents from their king to Louis XIV., were the only artillery procured for the attack on the Bastille of economic model on death, adorned with dragons and golden inscriptions, but without warheads. We need not go to India. There were two so deplorable at Harwar, Burton's time, which regular ordnance was intended. In fact, the tubes were of steel, but the massive gold casing cost £2000.

The defense of Malta in the old days the knights invented a kind of mortar, of copper, into which they poured the water of the sea, and when the mortar was fired, the water was ejected, and the mortar was used as a projectile. About fifty years ago, the British government purchased a number of these guns, and they are now in the hands of the British government.

LACES!

A Remarkable Lace Purchase

As the result of a very fortunate lace purchase from a large lace manufacturer several months ago, we have just received over 1,500 (one thousand) yards of

Fine Torchon Laces, Insertions and Beadings

In a large variety of widths and patterns. Were we to sell these laces today according to their regular value, they would be worth from 6c to 12 1/2c yard.

ON TUESDAY MORNING

this big lot of Laces will be on sale in one lot at one price—

3c per yd

This is a splendid lot of lace which you will buy liberally of them while they last at this fabulous price. You will never get such lace values again at this price.

In the making up of summer underwear, as many are doing just now, the price of trimmings will be greatly reduced in buying from this lot.

SINCLAIR'S SALE

Manufacturer's Whitewear Samples

The success of our Whitewear Department is largely due to the fact that we control for Belleville the production of one of the largest and best known Whitewear Manufacturers in Canada and we consider ourselves particularly fortunate in having secured, as about one-third of our business, their entire range of Sample Garments for the purpose of showing. This range of samples includes Corset Covers, Gowns, Skirts, Drawers, Chemises and Combinations, all of which we place on sale.

Tues. Morning, Feb. 18

At 1-3 Less Than Regular Prices

Them being samples and only one of each style, early buyers will win a great variety of articles for the range includes hundreds of garments.

Children's Wash Dress Display

For the coming season we have gone more extensively into Children's Wash Dresses than ever before and in order to interest the mothers, who in the past have had these garments for their children, we will, during this week, make a special showing of Children's White and Colored Wash Dresses, the equal of which, we think, has never been made in Belleville.

See Our Window Display of Children's Wear.

New Dress Goods Persian Lamb Sale

We have already received and placed in stock our first shipments of New Spring Dress Goods, including New Velvet, New Fur, New Tulle, New Cloth, New Broadcloth, New Jersey, New Lace, in a full range of Blacks and colors.

YORK LOAN AFFAIRS.
Referer Makes Things Look Brighter for General Body of Shareholders.
Toronto, Feb. 18.—Mr. Charles Kipple, official referer in the York Loan and Savings Company case, delivered judgment in connection with four claims of shareholders. Claims totaling $30,000 were denied with interest. The judgment is that about $500,000 of the loan is disallowed, and that the company should pay the balance of the loan to the shareholders.

The Clothes Story Reduced To Fractions

Nine-tenths of the men of this country wear ready-for-service clothes.

Two-thirds of these men wear the good kind of clothes while the other third keep the shoddy factories going.

It is only a question of time when the third last mentioned learns that it is poor economy to buy cheap clothes and then they will join the vast majority in the purchase of good clothes—the kind they ought to wear.

We do not want to make it understood that we do not handle the kind of the one-third wear, but we have everything in the good lines—they are a credit alike to Maker and Wearer.

Discount On Winter Clothing

To make room for large spring purchases which are arriving daily, we offer the following prices on all Winter Overcoats:

—$7.00 Overcoats for	—$8.00	—$12.00 Overcoats for	—$10.00
—$20.00	—$24.00	—$15.00	—$12.00
—$10.00	—$8.00	—$18.00	—$14.00
—$12.00	—$10.00	—$20.00	—$16.00

And the same proportionate discount on all odd lines of suits.

THAT RETAINING WALL.

Prominent Contractor Says He Could Build the Wall, and Cement It, for $10,000.—Ex-Mayor Sulman Gives Figures and Says That, So Far as He Knows, All Was Fair and Above Board.—Wall Was Measured by Harbor Master Sld. Vandervoort Before Contractors Were Paid.—A Civil Engineer's Opinion.—Should There be an Investigation.

The retaining wall matter, particulars of which were published in these columns on Monday last, has stirred up considerable interest in this city. A prominent citizen of this city, a liberal, by the way, said this morning: "Well, that was the poorest and latest explanation I ever saw. It contained no such suggestion into the effect cannot be made too quick."

EX-MAYOR SULMAN.

The Intelligence, in its criticism, ment, the morning called on Mr. Mayor Sulman, who was a member of the Board of Harbor Commissioners when the wall was built. This gentleman said he was with the committee when the discussion of the Intelligence's correspondence had and signed his name to the letter; however, he was not a member, and the newspaper man wanted them he could have them. The whole work as far as he knew, had been perfectly straight. The work had been accepted, had been paid for, and the money paid over to the contractor. The Intelligence's criticism, he said, was a matter of fact. The Intelligence's criticism, he said, was a matter of fact. The Intelligence's criticism, he said, was a matter of fact.

WHAT OTHERS SAY.

A gentleman of high standing in this city said he has the word of a local contractor, a man of good repute and ability, that he could build that retaining wall, and repair the same, for $10,000. A civil engineer, whose reputation is a skilled and reliable man as to more than local, tells us that he has, in a practical man, looked over the wall and there are convinced of this change.

That there are about 2,700 cubic yards in the wall.

That it would be well paid for by $5 per cubic yard.

That the wall could have been built, and better built than it is, at present, for half of $20,000.

Under these circumstances, may it not be said, should not the City Council and the Government for an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the building of that wall?

WALLPAPER BARGAINS AT T. P. BROWN'S

Our February Wallpaper Sale is well known and a great many people have taken advantage of the opportunity to purchase Wallpapers at low prices. This sale will be continued for a few more days in order to clear the balance of room wallpaper and Wall Paper. A discount of 50 per cent. will be given on all Non-removable papers for the balance of this month. Come in and see these bargains.

John Hopkins University has a thermometer worth $100.00. It was given to the University by a student who had sold all his books to buy this thermometer.

T. P. BROWN'S

STROUD'S HOUSEKEEPER'S

There's a lasting satisfaction in the purchase of a thoroughly first-class article, especially when the price is even less than you've often paid for goods of inferior quality. If you only know how to buy for good value, you will find a sufficient number of Kettles and Cans and Pots and Pans, you would not be without them any longer than it would take to run your stove.

We have just received a big shipment of "Fine Kitchen Ware"—Stew Kettles, Tea Kettles, Double Boilers, Crock Cooks, Sauce Cakes, Tea Pots, Dish Pans, Bread Pans, Boiling Pots, etc., at remarkably small prices.

GLASSWARE

Our sale of Glassware will continue all this week. Some of the Specials: 4 piece Table Set, 40c; 1 dozen 60c; 1 Lumbler, 10c; Covered Butter Dish, 13c; 1 doz. Sauce Dishes, 30c; Pepper and Sauce Cakes on table, 12c; Boiled Fruit Dish, 10c; Water Buttes, 10c; Glass Pitchers, 30c and 25c, etc. etc.

See the Table of Useful Articles at 10c. This week we have a line of Brown Earthen Cooking Ware. Strong and durable. Baking Dishes, etc., from 5c to 35c each.

WIRE GOODS

Our grandmothers used to do it all with a spoon or a fork. Today the housewife has a hundred and one labor-saving devices for her convenience. We keep them and will make a special showing of these this week. The prices are so low you can't afford to be without them.

The Clothes Story Reduced To Fractions

"Nine-tenths of the men of this country wear ready-for-serve clothes. Two-thirds of those men wear the good kind of clothes while the other third keeps the shabby factories going. It is only a question of time when the third last mentioned learns that it is poor economy to buy cheap clothes and then they will join the vast majority in the purchase of good clothes—the kind they ought to wear. We leg to make it understood that we don't handle the kind one-third wear, but we have everything in the good line—they are a credit alike to Maker and Wearer.

Discount On Winter Clothing

To make room for large spring purchases which are arriving daily, we offer the following prices on all Winter Overcoats:

—$7.00 Overcoats for	$5.00	$13.00 Overcoats for	$10.00
—$8.00 " " " "	$6.40	$15.00 " " " "	$12.00
—$10.00 " " " "	$8.00	$18.00 " " " "	$14.40
—$12.00 " " " "	$9.60	$20.00 " " " "	$16.00

And the same proportionate discount on all old lines of suits.

This Is the Store For Good Things

We give every patron the kind of a square deal that will win his trade, his influence and his everlasting friendship.

MR. BUTLER'S LITTLE BILL

For Searching the Title to the Drill Shed Property He Received the Net Sum of $391.01 From the Government—What Was Mr. Hurley's Share in the Transaction?

To the Editor of The Intelligencer,
Dear Sir:—On the 23rd January I received an order of the House for return showing the purchase of the Drill Shed grounds in Belleville and the transaction thereon. I have, amongst other papers brought down are the title of E. J. Butler, of Belleville, for examination and present the title to the property. This title has been absolute for 25 years, as many in Belleville are so, therefore, a very simple matter and the title to the three lots would have been searched and procured by any lawyer in Belleville, for a private individual for $10 each, and he would then have thought himself well paid. Yet it transpires, as shown by three annuities, that the Government paid Butler $201.01.

It further appears from the return that Jeremiah Hurley had to do with the purchase and was in consultation with Butler. Yet the Government has awarded me $200.00 as to what connection Jeremiah Hurley had referred to acquiring the title, however, "None" and was paid nothing therefor.

Evergreen News Hurley bought this title, and it yet remains to be seen if I can find out what he was paid, then and this book greater in regard to matters right at home?

Yours truly,
GUSSE PORTER,
GUTHRIE, Feb. 20.

THE CITY MISSION

Daily Intelligence.

Annual Report. Presented at Meeting on Thursday Night. Shows a Gratifying State of Affairs.

A concerted series of articles appearing in this paper this week, reflecting at once of publication in the Intelligence because the latter has been the most prominent of the "whereby friends of the Government are being benefited at the expense of the people."

With modern we read the story of one of the oldest workers in the cause of the poor. We read of the life of the late Mr. C. H. Wilson, who died in the Mission on Sunday evening last week. His life was a life of sacrifice and service to the poor.

Mr. Wilson was born in the city of London, England, and came to this country in 1870. He was a man of great energy and determination, and he spent his life in the service of the poor.

Mr. Wilson was a member of the City Mission for many years, and he was one of its most active workers. He was a man of great energy and determination, and he spent his life in the service of the poor.

The Whitewear and White Goods Sale

London, Feb. 25.—The British navy estimates for 1903-08 were issued last evening. They amount to $161,297,500, as against $157,047,500 for 1902-03.

In an explanatory statement Lord Tweedmouth, the first Lord of the Admiralty, points out that an increase in expenditure is inevitable, but by the strictest economy he was able to confine it to $1,500,000.

REDISTRIBUTION IN QUEEN'S

Number of Members in Legislature to be Increased—Private Bills.
Montreal, Feb. 27.—It is understood that the session which opens in Quebec on Tuesday night, will be of considerable importance. It is said that a redistribution bill will be introduced, by which the number of members will be increased.
 At Confederation the number of members was 45, and this was increased by Premier Mercur's redistribution measure to 73. It is believed that the County of Hochelaga, which has a population of 50,000, and one member, will be given two members, and the bill will readjust the County of Pontiac will also be given two members, as that constituency is like a great province.

Several private bills will also be introduced, amongst others one by Mr. J. G. Macdonald, of St. John, who wants the people to elect their school commissioners here in Montreal, as they do in Toronto and other cities. This measure, however, may be fought by both the Catholics and Protestants. If it will, perhaps, be thrown out. The statement is also made that the close of the coming season will be followed by the dis-

BRITAIN'S ATTITUDE FIRM.

London, Feb. 27.—The House of Commons today passed a resolution asking the Government to "do all in its power to secure the independence of Belgium, and failing that, transfer within reasonable time the administration of Belgium to the Belgian people's hearty support of any measure which would secure the independence of Belgium." The British Government to take, either alone, or in conjunction with the other powers, such steps as may be necessary to ensure the effective carrying out of its provisions.

Mr. Lloyd George, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, in a speech sympathetic to the resolution, said that it was adopted, on behalf of the Government, to establish political or territorial independence for Belgium, and to protect against the Belgian people. No Parliamentary union gave the Belgian Parliament a free hand and full control. Britain to take the initiative, while the discussion on the Congo question was going on, he said, "the Belgians and the people," but, he added, "the people have a right to demand the cooperation of the other powers and it, at the close of the Belgian Parliamentary session, we have to deal with the existing Government of the Congo unchanged, we must be free to deal with the questions arising out of our own treaty rights in our own way."

Ex-Mayor Not Guilty.
Sydney, Feb. 27.—D. M. Burchell, ex-mayor of the town of Borehall, and for some time superintendent of the stores of the Dominion Coal Co., was yesterday declared not guilty of the charges of larceny of $175, preferred by J. K. E. Ross at the instance of the coal company.

This is the second of eighteen counts on which Burchell was indicted by the grand jury.

The remaining sixteen counts will hardly be tried, inasmuch as the evidence against Burchell on the first remaining charge is sufficient.

Meantime Burchell was allowed to go on his own recognizance in the sum of $5,000.

New York, Feb. 27.—The Herald has received the following cable dispatch from London in an interview yesterday Mr. J. J. Mallon, secretary of the National Anti-Sweating League, cited a number of instances of sweating which had recently come to his notice. Appalling cases, he says, are continually occurring in factories and workshops, and especially in the cheap tailoring trade.

A terrible story has just been told to the committee of the Anti-Sweating League by a man who has been employed in the clothing trade. He has been created a sensation in the committee by his story of the conditions in the garment district.

NEED CHEAP ALCOHOL?

Mr. Bole's Motion For a Con

Aim to Reduce the Cost—Inland Revenue Department to Consider Question.—Mr. Lemieux Censured Regarding to Postal Changes.—Will New Arrangement Has Accomplished

—Some Immigrant Figures.

Ottawa, Feb. 27.—The crest page of the Journal of yesterday was cleared of several pages of the statistics at yesterday's sitting of the Commons, most of them relating to land transactions in the west and contracts in the east.

There was also a talk on alcohol precipitated by Mr. Dole of Winnipeg, president of the Manitoba Temperance society, for a commission to look into the question of cheapening alcohol for medicinal purposes of drugs. Incidentally, the subject of the prohibition industrial purposes was introduced into the debate, and the Minister of Finance, Mr. Duggan, announced that until Canadian farmers produce potatoes for eight to ten years, the government will not give pure alcohol for 20 cents a gallon.

Mr. Miller of South Garry renewed his attack on the prohibitionists, the cheapening of demerol alcohol and advocated the establishment of tion. It was important that the farmers of the country should get chea-

Mr. Templeman feared that it would be long before alcohol could be produced in Canada in quantities sufficient to compete with petroleum. In Germany there was a duty on petroleum and potatoes for distillation were produced for alcohol. In Canada, however, until Canadian farmers could raise potatoes at that price, we could not expect to get alcohol for 20 cents a gallon.

The resolution was passed and amended by the Minister, an invitation to be made by the Department.

Mr. Monk was informed that due to the period ended June 30, 1930 there entered Canada 100,512 lbs. of grants via ocean ports, and 211,454 lbs. from the United States. Of the 211,454 lbs. were returned to the United States 126 reported. Of those from the United States three were refused a mission and one deported.

no Ross rifles had been reported used or unserviceable except in the case of an accident, which was the result of its being tampered with. Last year the rifle had been suspended by the Northwest Mounted Police, so the police could be armed with the improved Ross rifle. The rifle is the former one with 604 Winchester carbine, 20 Lee-Enfield and 304 Lee-Metford. The force would yet be armed with the Ross rifle.

Mr. Armstrong of Lambton, on motion for correspondence respecting the recent changes in newspaper postage, censured the Government for not having maintained the high postal rates on weekly newspapers.

while arranging to have dailies carried to addresses in the United States by the former Canadian post office. He said that no better immigration literature could be sent into the United States than the Canadian weekly papers.

Mr. Lemieux explained at length the present arrangement, declaring that unless Canada would consent to the change, the United States would be obliged to make representations that was undesirable would be impossible to give for Canadian residents passing the United States, and the benefits of the old rates would be lost.

Mr. Lejoury and Mr. Martin (New Bedford, Island) criticized the arrangement as unreasonable, and reflection upon the business methods of the Department. Finally the resolution for the correspondence was adopted.

THE OPTIMISM OF SPRING.

(By B. Bickley.)

Springtime is approaching. I am happy to state. And I feel from his mission To help to liberate the soul of the world. To the soul of the world. To the soul of the world.

I've mired the mind in the mire. I've mired the mind in the mire. I've mired the mind in the mire. I've mired the mind in the mire.

When you get yourself your next trouble will be. Instead of the first, it's the last. For the first month or two you will have your share of trouble.

But long in the summer when the weather is hot. I'll have you a piece of the size of a piece. I'll have you a piece of the size of a piece.

A trade magazine says Americans buy their clothes too large. We're frequent men in the other hand, with their size small, especially in the morning.

What because of all the old shoes? A postscript. That even covers boarding house bush. Bush.

Thousands of the world's affairs are as yet unexplored. This includes, as very much of the world's affairs are as yet unexplored.

We are surprised that the company, we are surprised that the company, we are surprised that the company, we are surprised that the company.

The Clothes Story Reduced To Fractions

Nine-tenths of the men of this country wear ready-for-service clothes.

Two-thirds of these men wear the good kind of clothes while the other third keep the shoddy factories going. It is only a question of time when the third last mentioned learns that it is poor economy to buy cheap clothes and then they will join the majority in the purchase of good clothes—the clothes they ought to wear.

We beg to make it understood that we do not handle the kind of one-third wearers have everything in the good lines—they are a credit alike to Maker and Wearer.

Discount On Winter Clothing

Literary Notes.

"ROD AND GUN."

When Winter is King in Canada, the rod and gun are the most popular sports in the land.

The "Rod and Gun" is a new book, written by a Canadian, and is a most interesting and useful work. It is a book that every Canadian should have on his shelf.

Did John Maloney Steal From Church?

The man who was arrested yesterday afternoon for being intoxicated, and who, it is alleged, broke open a contribution box at St. Michael's Church, gave his name as John M. Maloney, and claims that a few years ago he worked in the city. Of late he had been apparently roaming about Maloney was in the church and up near the altar, where the contribution box was situated. The man was arrested by the police and taken to the city hall. He was released on $1000 bond.

The man was this morning brought before Justice, and was committed to the city hall. He was released on $1000 bond.

Wrecked The Shah's Auto.

Two Bombs Hurdled From Roof Killed Three Outriders.

Royal Motor Car Had Been Sent Ahead as a Decey—Pavlovian Rider Was Following in Closed Carriage and Escaped Assassins—Many People Wounded—No Arrests Have Yet Been Made.

Tokyo, Feb. 28.—An attempt was made in this city yesterday afternoon to assassinate the Shah of Persia by a bomb. His Majesty was not hurt. Three of the outriders who were accompanying him at the time were killed.

When Shah, upon his escape to the palace, tried to protect him from just such an attempt to make. He was in his car to a nearby house, where he was hidden for a few days. The procession had left the palace and was traveling a narrow street, when two bombs were hurled at it from the roof of a house. One exploded in the air, but the other struck the ground near the Shah's automobile. This missile killed and wounded several of the outriders and a score of bystanders and shattered the Shah's car.

The Shah, however, was not hit and escaped unhurt. He was taken to his automobile and was driven to the palace. The Shah, however, was not hit and escaped unhurt. He was taken to his automobile and was driven to the palace.

Woodstock, Feb. 28.—Governor Hughes yesterday signed the bill of the Assembly to amend the Armstrong insurance law. The bill was passed by the Assembly and the Governor has signed it.

SUFFRAGETTES SCORE.

Women's Enfranchisement Bill Passed in House of Commons.

London, Feb. 28.—The Women's Enfranchisement Bill passed in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by a vote of 212 to 160, and as soon as the news reached Westminster Palace the waiting crowd of suffragettes who have assembled there broke out in round applause and cheers.

The measure is identical with the bill passed March, 1907. Herbert Gladstone, the Home Secretary, declared that personally he favored the principles of the bill, but he thought that public opinion had not yet moved before any effort could be given to it.

The opposition to the bill made no objection to the vote of the House being taken, and as its promoters consented to its reference to a committee of the whole House, the bill is especially suited for the present session.

Great crowds of women awaited the result near the House of Commons and the detachment of police had been brought up to guard against possible disturbances, but beyond cheering there was little demonstration.

Will Bill Tackle.

Rome, Feb. 28.—The Cabinet was victorious in its opposition to the abolition of religious teaching in the schools. The motion brought in by the Chamber of Deputies for the Social party was defeated by 202 to 106.
